COLONEL WHACKS PEACE FEAST

Former President Makes Final
Attack on Taft Policies in Refusing to Attend.

TAFT WILL TALK FIRST.

Then Andrew Carnegie Will Take Charge of the Waldorf Banquet.

The Citizen's Peace Committee went into a special meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria this afternoon to try to meet some of the scandalous charges and countercharges which have developed out of the belated preliminaries of the dinner. Those charges involve attempted graft in an effort to shift the dinner to another hotel; an attempt by Secretary Bloomer to segregate ten per cent. of the gross receipts as personal remuneration; the alleged request made to President Taft to withdraw his acceptance and an attempt to sway the leading spirits by "printing their records in the newspapers."

Meanwhile a general disposition to avoid the dinner was shown by those who had intended to attend before the squabbling became so fast and furious. Gustav M. Schwab said the officers of the Argentine neighbors who were to have been his guests couldn't attend because of the rabidly complicated preliminaries.

A special car was attached to a train from Washington to bring distinguished diplomats and statesmen but very few took seats in it.

Theodore Roosevelt continued to fire hot-shot into the whole performance. His letter declining to attend in which he attacked Taft's policies was made public.

There was no increase in the order for policemen in uniform and strong arm men which Commissioner Waldo had ordered to attend. There are to be women at the tables and Mr. Waldo apparently felt that their presence would tend to prevent overt acts.

And besides the Strong Arm Squad there will be Secret Service agents and other gentlemen with peace propensities. It is going to be the most militant peace gathering on record, even if they don't have to call out the militia before it is over.

WALDO SENDS HIS "HEF PACIFICATORS" ALONG.

Commissioner Waldo decided to send his hefty pacificators to the scene after receiving a request from Samuel Bell Thomas, one of the promoters of the dinner. Mr. Thomas called in person at headquarters and when asked for police protection for the peace dinner the Commissioner hid his face to conceal a smile.

"You shall have peace and harmony at the peace dinner, Mr. Thomas," said Mr. Waldo. "About how many men would you want?"

"I leave that to you, Mr. Commissioner," replied Mr. Thomas. "Do as you think best under the circumstances." Commissioner Waldo remembered the recent peace meeting in Carnegie Hall and called Lieut. Becker, head of the Strong Arm Squad. He gave instructions to have twenty or thirty of the strongest of the strong-arm men on hand to-night.

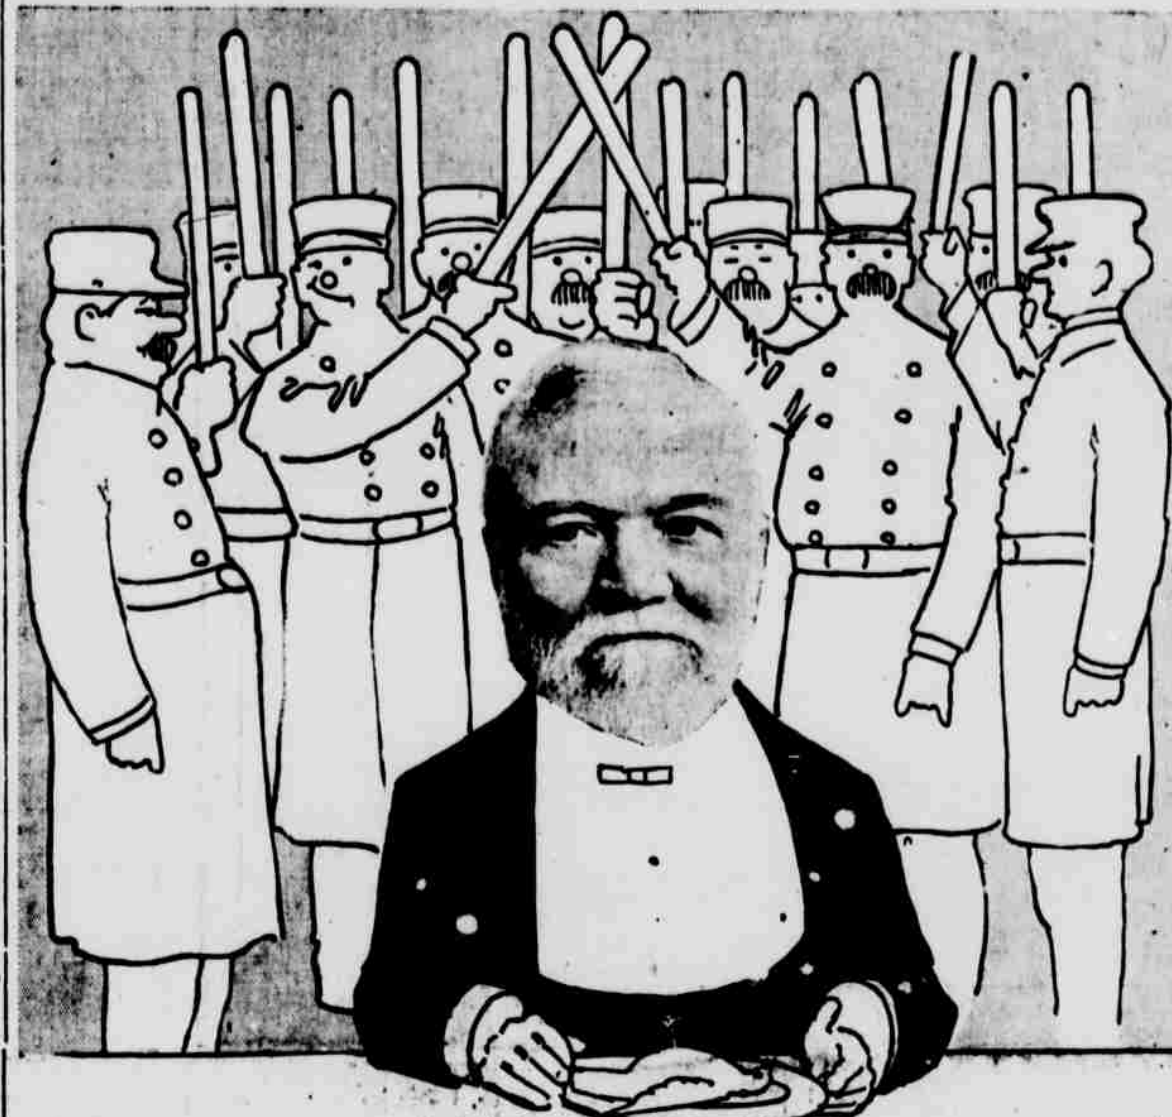

These detectives, many for the first time in their lives, will be in evening dress. They will wear patent leather shoes that pinch, and their tempers will be somewhat ruffled as the evening wears on. But they are going to keep peace if they have to fire somebody's looks like to them, whether a member of the car barn gang, a San Juan Hill desperado or a plutocrat. They will stalk behind shrubbery, creep along the corridors and drape themselves on neighboring stairways, but they will be close by.

This will not be the beginning of the warlike preparations for peace. The martial spirit will manifest itself as soon as President Taft arrives about 6 P. M. The President himself, it is understood, is not going to make any set speech. He will talk right off the bat, and some of his ammunition will be used up on Col. Roosevelt. Outlook editorial made public yesterday.

Before the regular Presidential train arrives, a special will get here from Washington about 4 P. M. Among the eighteen guests on it will be the Italian, Turkish, Japanese, Brazilian, French and Austro-Hungarian Ambassadors. The Italian Ambassador was invited, but declined. He is supposed to be busy reading bulletins of Italy's latest strategy in Tripoli.

At the Pennsylvania Station the peace delegation will be met by sixteen plain clothes detectives, fifteen mounted policemen, four bicycle policemen and fourteen uniformed men, besides a horde of Secret Service men. The delegates will be escorted to the hotel and the troopers and other guardians of the law will return to meet the President. There

REALLY A POLICE DINNER!

J. P. MORGAN SAILS FOR CRUISE UP THE NILE IN HIS YACHT

Unexpectedly Leaves Alone on the Olympic 'Mid God-speeds of Whole Family.

All unexpectedly to everybody but his family and his business partners, J. Pierpont Morgan sailed for Europe today on the White Star liner Olympic. He is on his way, by easy stages, to Egypt and will spend part of the winter cruising on the Nile on his own yacht.

For the first time in the memory of the oldest observer of the departure of trans-Atlantic liners, Mr. Morgan's entire family was down to see him off today. Always one or two of the family have been on hand, but today, although he sailed alone, his wife, his son and his son's wife, his daughters, Mrs. Herbert Satterlee and Anne Morgan, and Mr. Satterlee bade him au revoir. Besides, there were his grandchildren, Charles and Henry P. Davison.

The Morgan family party assembled on the Olympic some time before the advertised hour for sailing. It was like a midsummer departure. There were 448 first cabin passengers booked and more than 2,000 persons swarmed over the ship to see him off.

Mr. Morgan did not reach the Olympic until about fifteen minutes before sailing time. His name was not on any of the passenger lists and his appearance created some surprise as he hurried aboard alone. He made for a certain suite and found it occupied by someone else.

"WHERE DO I LIVE ON THIS SHIP?" HE ASKS.

"He," he called sharply to everybody in general, "where's my stateroom? Where am I going to live on this ship?"

Stewards hastily guided him to another suite, where he found his party awaiting him. He was in the best of health and the best of humor.

"I am going to Egypt," he told an Evening World reporter, "and I am going there as quickly as I can. You know I was to have sailed direct on the Adriatic, but I changed my plans."

"How long will you be gone?" Mr. Morgan was asked.

"I haven't any idea," he replied. "I'm going up the Nile. I have a boat of my own there. My plans are quite indefinite."

"About business," the reporter began.

"Nothing about business," interrupted

DR. DOTY TELLS GOVERNOR DIX HE WILL NOT RESIGN

Quarantine Health Officer Declares Trial Failed to Show Any Dereliction.

In a lengthy letter sent to Gov. Dix today Dr. A. H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port of New York, after reviewing the findings of Commissioner Bulger, and the decision of Gov. Dix, which asked for his resignation, declined the request of the Governor to resign the position he has held for a number of years.

Dr. Doty contends that the testimony taken before the Commissioner not only failed to show any dereliction on his part, but, on the contrary, established the successful administration of his office.

In addition, Dr. Doty states that he is not conscious of anything except the most faithful and strenuous effort on his part to discharge his duties faithfully. In conclusion, Dr. Doty states that in justice to the cause of proper and scientific quarantine administration or in justice to himself and family he cannot do other than to decline the request of Gov. Dix for his resignation.

BOY FIREBUG LIKED TO SEE ENGINES RUN.

Undersized Youth Arrested and Confessed That He Started Six Blazes.

Walter Stone of No. 60 Nassau street, Brooklyn, an undersized boy of seven years, was arrested today on a charge of arson. It was charged that he set fire to the house being erected at No. 38 New York avenue.

The boy was taken to the police station and confessed that he had started six fires in the neighborhood of his home and two others in Flatbush. He also said he had been arrested in the winter of 1908 for starting a fire.

"I started the fire yesterday to see the engines run," said the youth. "There were no cigarettes about it. I don't smoke 'em. I stick to my pipe and cigars. I'm not big enough or I'd be a fireman. I'm going to be one when I get bigger."

INSPECTORS LOSE JOBS.

Bureau of Health Forced to Drop 34 Under the New Budget.

Thirty-four medical inspectors were dropped from the payroll of the Health Department today as a consequence of the rearrangement of the budget for 1912. The new budget provides for more nurses and less medical inspectors.

The inspectors have been dropped in the inverse order of their appointment in the inverse order of their appointment, the last appointed being the first whose name is stricken from the payroll.

The only divisions of the Health Department affected by this weeding out process were the contagious disease division and the child hygiene divisions, the latter including the public schools.

GEN. G. W. C. LEE Seriously Sick.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 29.—Gen. G. W. C. Lee, son of Robert E. Lee, is seriously ill at his home, Ravensworth, near Park Station, Fairfax County. The distinguished Confederate soldier, eighty years old, is suffering from a broken hip.

THE EVENING WORLD will not be published on New Year's Day Monday, January the First, 1912

HAD REVOLVER TO KILL JUDGE WHO GAVE MERCY

Ex-Convict Threatens Jurist Who Released Him to Attend Mother's Funeral.

GLASS CRASH WARNED.

Policeman, Quicker "Gun-Man," Gets Burglar in Act of Drawing.

With a loaded revolver in his pocket which he said he was "carrying for Judge Foster," William Harrigan, an ex-convict, was found in the act of burglary early today, in the liquor store of Edward Fraumthal, No. 103 Second avenue. Judge Foster, while Harrigan was serving a year's term in 1908, let him out for a day, under guard, to attend his mother's funeral, the police found when they looked over his record to find out what the Judge had done to him.

When he was arraigned before Magistrate Arthur J. Connelley, Harrigan said he was carrying the revolver to attend his mother's funeral. He said he was carrying the revolver to attend his mother's funeral. He said he was carrying the revolver to attend his mother's funeral.

CONTEMPTUOUS TO MERCIFUL JUDGE FOR FAVOR.

"Did you really mean to kill Judge Foster?" asked the Magistrate. "Aw, quit your kidding," said Harrigan sullenly. "What do people think I am—nutty? What is there in it for me if I kill Foster? When I kill anybody it will be somebody worth something. He ain't worth killing."

The Magistrate held him without bail on the double charge of carrying a weapon and burglary. McKee heard breaking glass as he was walking through Second avenue last night. A survey of doors and windows brought him to the broken glass panel of the liquor store. He rapped on the curb until Policeman Plummer came. Then, with Plummer on guard, McKee crawled in through the hole in the door and turned on a light. He caught a glimpse of Harrigan's face behind a headboard at the back of the store and made for him. Harrigan was reaching deep into his pocket when the policeman got to him.

McKee was quicker and had his revolver under the thief's nose and made Harrigan stop. Harrigan said he would not say a word until McKee before the station desk drew out the revolver and laid it before the lieutenant. Then his suppressed rage got the better of him and he yelled his sentiments toward the judge who had showed pity for him.

HAD BEEN ARRESTED SIX TIMES BEFORE.

Before Judge Foster sentenced him to the penitentiary for assault in the second degree, Harrigan had been arrested six times for small crimes. His name, they told the police, was in Mills Hotel No. 2.

As he tried to persuade them that his name was Philip Burk before his place was compared with Harrigan's photo in the Roosevelt Gallery, the police don't believe much of anything he says. They found letters in his pockets dated at the Bedford reformatory, signed "Ethel."

They were addressed to "William Harrigan."

A queer coincidence, Policeman Shabazz, running to answer McKee's rap for help, heard glass breaking at No. 103 Second avenue. He stopped right there, went into the saloon and caught a man who said he was John Vanzor of No. 36 East Sixty-fifth street.

"TROUBLE" MAKES TROUBLE.

Little Actress Lets Baby Brother Roll From Bed—He May Die.

Five-year-old Lois Ewell, who induced Mayor Gaynor to arrange for her appearance as "Trouble," the baby, in Madame Butterfly, today was the unwitting cause of what may prove a tragedy for her baby brother, Raine, two years old.

The children live with their parents at No. 116 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn. Little Raine was in his walking chair in the bedroom, this morning, when the postman came and Mrs. Ewell ran down stairs.

"Aren't you tired of that old chair, I wonder?" mused Lois.

She took the baby out and laid him on the bed. Raine rolled off. Dr. Wagner took him to the Brooklyn Hospital, where it is said his skull is fractured and he may die.

When Lois was wanted for "Madame Butterfly," the Children's Society intervened. The little law involved Mayor Gaynor's sanction and persuaded him to smooth the way for her professional appearance.

ARREST HIGH LABOR LEADERS IN M'NAMARA DYNAMITE PLOT

TWO LABOR LEADERS WHO ARE ARRESTED IN GREAT DYNAMITE PLOT.

OLAF TVEITMOE.

ANTON JOHANSEN. SHAKES YOUNG ASTOR, TRADES VIOLETS WITH COUNT

Ambassador Leishman's Daughter's Affairs Amuse Passengers on the Olympic.

Miss Nancy Leishman, daughter of the American Ambassador to Germany, created quite a little diversion in the hurry attending the sailing of the Olympic today. Miss Leishman was accompanied by her mother and they are returning to Berlin after a shopping excursion to New York.

Vincent Astor, son and heir of John Jacob Astor, accompanied Miss Leishman and her mother to the pier. The young man was very attentive to the Ambassador's daughter up to about ten minutes before the departure of the Olympic, when he went ashore.

Then appeared Count Montenegro, the young son of a German diplomat. He took the place vacated by Mr. Astor. The Count was dressed up to the minute, with a top hat crowning his costume and a boutonniere of violets in the left lapel of his coat.

Two of the violets the Count detached and handed to Miss Leishman. She extracted two violets from a corsage bouquet and handed them to the Count. He passed them reverently to a pocketbook and she hid the flowers away from the Count behind her coat.

All of which created a lot of talk, as Mrs. Leishman, among other things, had been seen at the pier.

Lord and Lady Deles, who have been visiting the parents of Lady Deles and Mrs. George Gould, returned to London on the Olympic. They were accompanied by Lord and Lady Deles's Lord Deles's daughter, a young woman, yesterday stating that his mother was ill in London and he had just returned to New York.

Miss Mildred Sherman, a young woman, the daughter of the late Mrs. Sherman, who was married to Lord Deles, returned to London on the Olympic. They were accompanied by Lord and Lady Deles's Lord Deles's daughter, a young woman, yesterday stating that his mother was ill in London and he had just returned to New York.

When Lois was wanted for "Madame Butterfly," the Children's Society intervened. The little law involved Mayor Gaynor's sanction and persuaded him to smooth the way for her professional appearance.

Three Union Chiefs in West, Under Indictment for Alleged Part in Outrages at Los Angeles, in Custody.

TVEITMOE IS RIGHT HAND MAN OF SAMUEL GOMPERS

Vice-President of American Federation Accused, With Salt Lake and San Francisco Officials

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30.—The Grand Jury returned indictments today against Olaf A. Tveitmoe and Anton Johansen of San Francisco and J. E. Munsey of Salt Lake City, labor leaders, charging them with indirect complicity in a plot to destroy certain properties on the Pacific Coast with dynamite, including the Los Angeles Times Building and the Llewellyn Iron Works. The three men had been notified that indictments were pending and were in Los Angeles when the Grand Jury reported on their cases.

They were arrested in the witness room of the Federal Building. They were taken to the Federal Court for arraignment before Judge Wellborn.

FLAMES AND COLD ADD TO HORRORS OF TRAIN WRECK

At Least Three Meet Death in Burning Car—Injured Drag Themselves Through Snow.

ANETA, N. D., Dec. 30.—Train No. 5, the "Oregonian," on the Great Northern was derailed this forenoon and at least three persons were killed and a score of others injured. The accident occurred two and a half miles south of Sharon, Steele County. General Manager Gruber's car was attached to the train, and this and the observation cars were the only ones to remain on the rails.

The fatalities occurred in the dining car and the bodies were burned by fire which started in the debris.

With the thermometer 12 below zero, the injured passengers and trainmen suffered severely before they could be given aid. The general manager's car and the observation car were transformed into temporary hospitals for the relief of the victims, while others were taken to farmhouses. Aid was summoned from Sharon, and doctors and citizens worked all morning caring for the injured.

A special train was called from Devils Lake, while the wrecking crew at Casselton was also called.

The locomotive, it appears, broke one rail, hurled the cars from the track and into the ditch.

The Oregonian left St. Paul last night and was due through Sharon at about 9:30 o'clock.

The officials had given orders not to permit anyone to enter the wreckage until the injured had been cared for, and the fire burned so hotly that the bodies were cremated before identification could be made.

A girl whose name could not be learned was dragged from the wreckage and died as he was being carried to one of the cars for medical treatment.

Persons are confident that the list of dead will be greater than now reported. Many of the injured who escaped from the fire dragged themselves through the snow, leaving tracks of blood.

Olaf A. Tveitmoe is one of the most prominent labor leaders in the Far West. He is secretary-treasurer of the State Building Trades Council of California and one of the Vice-Presidents of the American Federation of Labor. Tveitmoe has been regarded as the right hand man of Samuel Gompers on Pacific Coast.

HIGH MEN IN RANKS OF LAB. UNION.

Johansen is Tveitmoe's confidential man. His office is that of organizer of the State Building Trades Council. These two were prime movers in the crusade that raised the wages of bricklayers in the building trades to such high figures following the earthquake.

Munsey is the Business Agent of the Structural Ironworkers Union of Salt Lake City and is a power in that union west of the Rocky Mountains. His name has often been mentioned in connection with the McNamara case.

The Federal Grand Jury is not touching directly upon the dynamite outrages in California. The specific indictment against Tveitmoe, Johansen and Munsey is that they conspired to transport dynamite between States of the Union in violation of the laws of the United States. There were dynamite explosions on jobs of non-union steel erectors in Salt Lake, and it is charged that Munsey, Tveitmoe and Johansen, with others, now under indictment but not under arrest, connived in the shipment of dynamite between Utah and California.

It was in Munsey's home in Salt Lake City that James McNamara took refuge when he had fled from Los Angeles, after exploding the bomb in the Times Building. Orville McManigal, the informant, also stopped at Munsey's home on his trips to and from the Pacific Coast.

MUNSEY SAID TO HAVE VISITED M'NAMARAS.

It is charged by the Government that Tveitmoe and Johansen and several others prominent in the building trades unions in San Francisco, plotted to unionize Los Angeles and that in the plot they had the backing of some of the prominent Los Angeles citizens. But the work of unionizing Los Angeles proceeded slowly.

Then, it is charged, Tveitmoe and his associates got into communication with Munsey and Munsey enlisted the aid of the McNamaras. The confession of Orville McManigal, it is said, sets forth fully how the negotiations between San Francisco and Salt Lake City, on one side of the mountains, and Indianapolis, Ind., on the other, led to the beginning of dynamite explosions in Los Angeles.

Tveitmoe, Johansen, Munsey and other labor leaders have all talked with Special Prosecutors Lawler and have all said that upon the negotiations between San Francisco and Salt Lake City, on one side of the mountains, and Indianapolis, Ind., on the other, led to the beginning of dynamite explosions in Los Angeles.

Before they were taken into custody today Tveitmoe and Johansen said they had been told their bail would be $5,000 each, and labor union
